FOREWORD

If you're reading this, chances are you've played a part in the Schools Triathlon. We have you to thank for the incredible success of the Schools Triathlon.

Over the past ten years, the Schools Triathlon has bucked every trend. It's growing as a charity sporting event; bringing children together to be active, off screens, with their friends; volunteers are giving their Sundays to help out. And when the national rate of giving is down, triathletes' fundraising efforts have increased. This is testament to the collective efforts and generosity of the Schools Triathlon community.

This has been a life line to many of the most marginalised young leaders that Restless Development supports around the world. Giving young people the chance to lead initiatives, community groups and set up businesses that have a lasting impact for good. Helping reduce child marriage and girls to stay in school in Sierra Leone, or young people to take climate action in Nepal, or set up local business in Zambia, and so much more.

From everyone at Restless Development, thank you. As we celebrate the incredible success of the last ten years we can't wait to see what can be achieved in the next decade!

Alex Kent & Kate Muhwezi
Restless Development Co-CEO's

Celebrating 10 years

The Schools Triathlon was the brainchild of Jim Sewell and Tessa Murray, who were young volunteers with Restless Development in the 1990s. Jim later joined Restless Development's Board of Trustees in 2006 and went on to become one of the organisation's most dedicated supporters, cycling across the country to raise funds and launching the Entrepreneurs Panel. It was Jim's determination to create sustainable income streams for charity that led to setting up the Schools Triathlon.

Their idea was simple – to create an inclusive incredible sporting event for children – a children's equivalent to the London Marathon to fundraise for Restless Development.

What started as a simple idea has grown into one of the largest mass-participation sporting charity events for young people in the UK.

“The Knight Frank Schools Triathlon has gone from strength to strength each year and it is brilliant to see the enthusiasm from the children, parents and schools alike. Their efforts will help thousands of young people around the world who are transforming their communities through better access to health, education and life skills.

The children taking part really understand that they can make a difference and the combination of sport and charity in a children's event has been incredibly powerful.”

– Jim Sewell, Co-Founder of the Schools Triathlon

2016

The very first School Triathlon events with a total of 910 triathletes

2017 – 2019

Over the next 2 years we grew to 5 host schools, with 3,326 reaching a total of £1 million raised in 2019

2020 – 2021

Although COVID-19 canceled the live Schools Triathlon, children joined forces virtually with GB athletes Liz Cass and Louis Rolfe through the #TriThisAtHome app challenge to log 40,075 km and collectively travel around the world

2022 – 2026

Over the past five years, the Schools Triathlon has more than doubled its footprint, growing from seven events in 2022 to fifteen in 2026.

In 2020 – Jim and Tessa received the Daily Points of Light Award from the UK Prime Minister, in recognition for their outstanding voluntary contribution to charity, beyond the scenes of the School Triathlons.

TEN-YEAR TOTALS

£8,105,191 raised for charity

THE SCHOOLS TRIATHLON IN 2026

This year, our triathletes swam, cycled and ran a combined distance greater than the journey from London to Sydney.

Through their efforts, Schools Triathlon participants raised vital funds to help young people lead change in some of the world's most marginalised communities.

This was another record breaking year. The Knight Frank Schools Triathlon is now the 19th largest in-person fundraising event in the UK, and one of the fastest growing (Massive Top 25).

FEEDBACK

The Schools Triathlon is so much more than an incredible sporting event. It's an opportunity for children to push themselves, work as a team, have fun, and have an impact on others. Read some of the feedback from those involved.

"It's a wonderful early lesson that you're never too young to make a positive impact. Children realise they can use their own opportunities to help others."

- Tessa Murray, Co-Founder of the Schools Triathlon

"The children had a fantastic time at the triathlon, and it was wonderful to see some of them challenge themselves with activities they had previously found difficult. It was truly encouraging to see their confidence grow."

- Triathlon Parent

"The key is helping children find something they can get excited about. We're always amazed during school assemblies - at first, there are pupils who can't swim 50 metres or ride a bike. Then they sign up for the triathlon, and suddenly the swimming club has 100 members. It's transformational."

- Jim Sewell, Co-Founder of the Schools Triathlon

"Our daughter really enjoyed her triathlon at Abingdon on the weekend. Thank you for organising such a wonderful and inclusive event. She has a rare genetic condition and so being able to participate in this has been wonderful for her,"

- Triathlon Parent

CHILDREN GETTING ACTIVE

With increasing concerns over children's wellbeing, the Schools Triathlons are even more relevant today as a way of getting children active, having fun and increasing their resilience.

Regular movement supports children's physical and emotional wellbeing, helping to build confidence, self-esteem and resilience. Training and taking part in a triathlon is a great way for children to have fun with their friends and stay off screens.

“For many children, sport can feel intimidating. This isn't about individual times. It's team-based, inclusive and focused on enjoyment. The disciplines in a triathlon are the activities many people rely on to stay fit throughout their lives. Helping children enjoy those sports early on is a great foundation for long-term health.” – Tessa Murray

“Children today are growing up in a world that can be quite insular – many are the first generation immersed in smartphones and social media from a young age. Sport and fundraising are outward-looking and community-based, which is incredibly positive for mental health.” – Jim Sewell

CHILDREN FUNDRAISING

Each Schools Triathlon participant is asked to raise a minimum of £60, with a suggested target of £100. This year, children went even further, raising an average of £123 each, up from £113 in 2025, including Gift Aid.

This bucks the national fundraising trend of a decline in British public donation and fundraising. Testimony to the phenomenal efforts of triathletes and generosity of the Schools Triathlon community.

Bobby from the The Fean Bean Nebedys team got creative selling his beloved 3D printed toys at a car boot sale to raise £110.

Sasha, Ava, Mya, Maia and Zara from the Disco Dragons had fun making jewellery, keyrings, cakes and a lucky dip which people paid to play, raising £153.

AMAZING TOP FUNDRAISERS!

The triathletes team fundraising efforts never cease to amaze us! With so many going above and beyond to make a difference. This includes bake sales and car washes to sponsored silences, handmade crafts and many more creative fundraising ideas, every effort has helped support young people around the world.

A special congratulations goes to all our top fundraising teams, whose incredible efforts have gone to help many more people make change around the world.

The super Sidcot Wolves, who took part in the Clifton College Schools Triathlon, were recognised as one of our top fundraising teams for the third consecutive year. This year, the friends raised £3,981. Together, they've now raised an incredible £15,000 over the past three years.

The brilliant BeyBey-Beylachi-Koala-Turtles raised an incredible £4,111

AMAZING TOP FUNDRAISERS!

- The marvelous Cheetah Champions raised an incredible £4,083
- The outstanding Chippy Chaos raised £3,539
- The spectacular Davenies Dynamos raised an incredible £2,977. Their advice: “Try your hardest and always have a smile on your face.”
- The excellent Underdogs Plus! £2,056

And an extra special mention to Thomas Battersea School for a record number of top fundraising teams including: The Grizzly Gladiators who raised £3,280, Team Turbo raising £2,370, the Sole Sisters raising £2,00, the Silly Sausage Dogs £2,107 and Sporty Spirits raising £1,992.

VOLUNTEERS

Like any major sporting event, volunteers are the backbone of the Schools Triathlon.

Some travel across the country, many get up at the crack of dawn and nearly all of them are on their feet all day directing families, cheering on triathletes and being on hand to make the events as smooth and fun as possible. Our dedicated team of volunteer helpers further strengthen the community connections and wellbeing.

Across the 15 Schools Triathlons, more than 130 external volunteers gave their time to help make the series possible. This includes 24 colleagues from our headline sponsor, Knight Frank, as well as parents and family members, Schools Triathlon alumni, Restless Development alumni, British Triathlon, local triathlon and running clubs, cadet groups, Rotary Clubs and many more supporters from across our event communities.

Some of our volunteers have been involved for four decades – that includes Polly Anderson, who in the 1980s, welcomed some of the first Restless Development (at the time SPW) volunteers as they arrived in Zimbabwe, with her husband Ken Anderson.

Hundreds of students from our host schools also volunteered at our events, proudly representing their schools and helping make each event a success.

“I was so impressed with the event and how much I enjoyed volunteering. My daughter completed it and got such a buzz from it that I haven’t seen her in a long time. I will be offering to help out again next year.”

– Laura Cullen, Parent Volunteer, Kings College Taunton

“The volunteer roles were made so much easier by the superb team. It was a joy to give time to something that was so well organised and such fun to deliver.”

– Simon Aguss, Second-year volunteer, Sevenoaks

AMBASSADOR – JAMES GUY

GB Olympic gold medalist James Guy MBE was our ambassador for the 10th anniversary of the Schools Triathlon.

James is a fantastic advocate for getting young people into sport and knows first-hand how it can build confidence, resilience and teamwork – values at the heart of every Schools Triathlon event.

This year, James attended the Cheadle Hulme Schools Triathlon to cheer on all the triathletes and hand out medals at the finish line.

“As a kid I tried everything – football, martial arts, gymnastics. Swimming was the one that really clicked.

“I’m proud to support the Schools Triathlon and Restless Development. The triathlons are an incredible way for young people to challenge themselves, work as a team, and experience the buzz of event day.”

“At a competitive level, I saw a lot of talented kids burn out because they were pushed too early. Looking back, the most important thing is enjoying what you do. The results come later.” – James Guy

GLOBAL IMPACT

Restless Development supports young people to drive real transformation, prioritising those with the least opportunities and where the need is greatest. The charity funds, supports and mentors young people and youth organisations to make change.

POWER UP: THE GIRLS' EDUCATION INITIATIVE IN SIERRA LEONE

The Power Up Girls' Education Initiative in Sierra Leone, works to keep the most marginalised teenage girls, in school and learning.

Over the last three years Restless Development has supported 15,000 girls across 44 schools in Bombali and Moyamba districts of Sierra Leone. Providing girls-only safe spaces for girls to learn literacy, numeracy and life skills, and youth mentors helping girls with transition plans and options. The programme works with boys and men, as well as schools, parents and parent-teacher associations to be allies in valuing and protecting girls' education. And importantly enforcing community by-laws to protect girls from early marriage and dropping out of school.

GLOBAL IMPACT

Restless Development supports young people to drive real transformation, prioritising those with the least opportunities and where the need is greatest. The charity funds, supports and mentors young people and youth organisations to make change.

“My father believed school was meant for boys, not girls like me. Today, I can read, I can write, and I stand in front of other girls teaching them their rights. Going back to school at 14 did not just change my life – it showed my community that a girl’s place is not only in marriage or tailoring, but in the classroom, in leadership, and in shaping her own future.”

– Isatu Jalloh, Sierra Leone

POWER UP: THE GIRLS’ EDUCATION INITIATIVE IN SIERRA LEONE

From 6% to 97.5%: That is the dramatic rise in teenage girls in Sierra Leone who are now determined to stay in school and build their own futures. Academic performance has also skyrocketed, with end-of-year pass rates jumping from 42% to an astounding 99.4%. Just as crucially, the social fabric around these young women has transformed: every single boy surveyed now actively champions girls' education, replacing old prejudices with community support. Armed with this backing, 88.8% of girls now hold the reins to their own educational decisions. Spurred on by youth mentors, who 88.2% of girls credit for keeping them in school, nearly all of them now stand equipped with concrete transition plans, and a staggering 92.6% are setting their sights on becoming entrepreneurs.

YOUTH ACTION FUNDS

Restless Development has set up and run youth-led funds worldwide, from the Young Gamechangers Fund in the UK to the Youth Action Labs across Africa & India — testing mechanisms that put decision-making directly in young leaders' hands.

YOUNG GAMECHANGERS FUND IN THE UK

The Young Gamechangers Fund in the UK has given 100 gamechangers micro-grants between £1,000 and £20,000, as well as peer support networks, training, and mentoring to help bring their vision to life. This includes:

- The Mental Health Movement, to provide affordable counselling and a safe place to heal for young people affected by trauma in North Belfast.
- Wobbly Socials CIC, to provide creative groups, workshops and games nights for young people who find social interaction difficult.
- Rise Up Kids Foundation, to provide clubs and activities for children and young people facing financial hardship.

YOUTH FUNDS

This year, over £2 million was unlocked for more than 250 youth groups.

YOUTH VOICES LAB ACROSS AFRICA

The Youth Voices Lab has provided 35 micro-grants to youth-led initiatives across Africa. This includes:

- The Read to Learn Foundation in Uganda reintegrated 16 schools into the literacy initiative reaching over 2,300 girls and boys.
- The Girls in Education Dialogues project in Nigeria co-created a leadership facilitation manual with 330 students to support boys and girls to complete school.
- The Mbale Network of Young People living with HIV in Uganda integrated 12 young people into Health Unit Management Committees.
- The Men End Female Genital Mutilation Foundation in Kenya influencing national policy to end Female Genital Mutilation.

YOUTH LEADERSHIP

Restless Development prioritises young leaders in the way it works (developing a power shifting checklist), and sector standards that enable young leaders to thrive. The charity has recently been short-listed by the Global Good Awards for the Global Good Employer of the Year.

Feedback from the latest leadership survey:

99% feel proud to volunteer with Restless Development

97% feel supported to become leaders

97% found the experience key to further their career and economic empowerment

98% felt welcomed and valued

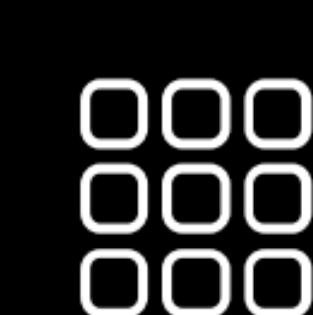

RESTLESS DEVELOPMENT

Restless Development is a global charity for youth-led change. It started as SPW in 1985; founded by Jim Cogan, a teacher at Westminster College who had a deep belief in young people.

Restless Development has now reached 10 million young people. Last year celebrating the 40th anniversary in Zimbabwe, hosted by British Ambassador Pete Vowles (who first went to Zimbabwe as an SPW volunteer).

The charity is now a global network of locally-led organisations. Working together to train, support, and fund young volunteers, young leaders and youth organisations to have a real lasting impact on their lives and communities.

SPONSORS

Long-term sponsorship is vital, enabling the Schools Triathlon to plan with confidence and keep operational costs low, so that more of the money raised goes where it is needed most.

Knight Frank have been a fantastically supportive title sponsor, with staff from local Knight Frank offices coming to volunteer at the Schools Triathlon events, and hand out the medals on the finish line. Knight Frank also helped with the communications, media, and hosting our 10th anniversary party.

“The 10th year of the Knight Frank Schools Triathlon has been the biggest and the best yet – huge congratulations to the whole team and to all the participants.”

– James Cleland, Head of Country Business, Knight Frank

Neilson has supported the series for three years running. As a Which? Recommended Provider and a holiday company that is all about Good Energy, Neilson has also been named the British Travel Awards Best Travel Company for Activity/Sports Holidays for 12 years, making it a natural fit for the Schools Triathlon.

At every triathlon, the Neilson teams were on hand to help families have fun and get active. The Neilson stands have been manned by enthusiastic Beach Club staff, where children and families have enjoyed games and activities, had their faces painted, picked up tips on staying active and much more.

This year, Neilson also gave away a Beach Club family holiday worth £9,000 to one lucky triathlon family winner.

TRIATHLON TEAM

The Schools Triathlon Series is run by a small fundraising team at Restless Development. Rachel, Jemma, Jess and Lucy delivered 215 school assemblies, engaging with more than 400 different schools and acted as the first point of contact for all Schools Triathlon-related enquiries.

From school outreach and engagement to participant recruitment, volunteer coordination, and stewardship, the team manages every stage of the event life cycle.

Rachel – Head of Fundraising

“This is my 3rd year working on the Schools Triathlon and every year it just gets better and more rewarding. My highlight of the year was definitely listening to the MC at the finish line interviewing all the teams as they crossed; it was so lovely to hear how proud all the teams were of their achievements.”

Jemma – Senior Fundraising Manager

“I’ve loved working on the Schools Triathlon. There’s always such an incredible buzz on event day. My highlight this year was watching children encourage their teammates through the swim. Seeing them cheer each other on was a lovely reminder that the event is about so much more than sport.”

Lucy – Fundraising Event Coordinator

“There’s no doubt that the 2026 Schools Triathlon Series was special. There couldn’t possibly be just one highlight. I spent most of my time at the Restless Development gazebo, which meant I had the chance to speak to so many of the participants and families who joined us on the day. The nervous smiles, confident laughs, stories of fundraising, and young people proudly telling me what they were most looking forward to – all of it was brilliant. All of it was a highlight! It is truly an honour to be part of their day.”

Jess – Fundraising Event Coordinator

“I have loved every minute working on this year’s Schools Triathlon. It’s been fantastic to see participants challenge themselves, support their teammates and cross the finish line with huge smiles! There were so many memorable moments that it’s impossible to choose just one. My highlights include cheering on swimmers with Olympian James Guy MBE, speaking to the children about their very creative team names and fundraising efforts and finally, meeting all our wonderful volunteers on event day!”
